'Now for Something Completely Different'; Nassau Inn Plans Re-opening for Tap Room

The Tap Room at the Nassau Inn, which has been closed all summer for remodeling, will officially re-open Monday, September 8.

Unlike the quiet, low-key openings for the Inn's Palmer's Restaurant and Lobby Bar, the Tap Room will be treated to ten days of non-stop glitz beginning when Yankee Doodle's pony eats through a "ribbon" at the entrance to the favern at noon.

Earlier that day, Yankee Doodle, accompanied by several "wenches," will walk around Palmer Square distributing proclamations describing the activities.

And on opening night, beginning at 5:30, "Bodies by Bedwell," described in the Nassau Inn's press release as "sexy male dancers," will perform exotic routines. All female guests will receive roses.

Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who will preside at the noon ceremonies along with Collins Development Executive Vice President Gary Green, an executive of the parent Omni Hotels chain, and Karen Jezierny, director of community and state affairs for Princeton University, said she was glad her involvement ended at noon. "I won't dance, don't ask me," she quipped.

The following night — Day Number Two of the festivities is called "Nuts and Bolts Night." To quote the press release, "Each person can select a nut or bolt at the door and try to find their match in the crowd. Perfect matches

Township Committee Approves Changes Designed to Limit Commercial Buildings

Just days before a major new Bunn Drive development was to come before the Planning Board for approval. Township committee reduced the amount of office space allowed to be built in that area.

The Township Committee members present at the Monday night meeting voted unanimously to approve a zoning modification in the zones designated OR-1 and OR-2. The change reduces the floor-area-ratio (FAR) in the OR-1 zone from 12 to 8 percent and in the OR-2 zone from 18 to 10 percent. The change also shifts the less dense OR-1 zone slightly south. towards Harrison Street, aligning it more closely to the environmentally sensitive Princeton Ridge.

FAR is the ratio of the square footage of a building to the land on which it is built. The change will reduce the amount of office space permit- William Lowe, developer of the ted in the area by about 600,000 square feet, allowing for a maximum of over 1 million square feet. Presently the zones have 473,000 square feet of office space.

The vote on the zoning changes was timed to block a 129,000-square-foot office complex proposal that is on the Planning Board agenda for Thursday night. The need to reduce the FAR was indicated in a traffic study by Garman Associates and was recommended by the Regional Planning Board.

The third and final public hearing on the change in the zoning ordinance drew an audience of about 40 people. Nine people spoke out on the issue.

Mt. Lucas resident Scott Neilson presented a petition urging the Township to make the zoning changes. It was signed by 362 residents who live in and around the OR "Compassion, understanding, cut-off at the knees," said Judith Robinson of Mount Lucas Road, referring to testimony made by developers and their attorneys at previous hearings. "I don't associate those words with making money.

Speaking out against the financial concerns of the developers and urging adoption of the changes, she continued "When I hear 'how much can be made' and 'how much I deserve to make,' I really quake. I don't think the town has any obligation to quarantee or make up to any investor."

Poor Farm Road resident James T. Sherwin praised the Township Committee for "striking the balance between quality of life and economic interest.'

In a final effort to protest the ordinance, Chatham physician

Bunn Drive office complex that is on the Thursday Planning Board agenda, compared Princeton's FARs to the higher ratios in several neighboring communities.

His attorney, Andre Gruber, made the point that the Township would "lose the rateables and still suffer the consequences of development in surrounding towns.

Gerald Skey, attorney for the Ricciardis, developers of another proposed Bunn Drive office, claimed that his client had been "led down the gar-

17-Year-Old Is Killed In Saturday Accident After Car Hits Pole

A 17-year-old Montgomery Township teenager was killed and two passangers injured when their station wagon hit a utility pole on Route 518 Saturday morning and overturned.

The victim, Julius Sesztak Jr. of Bedan's Brook Road, a passenger in the front seat. was pronounced dead from multiple trauma injuries about 7:45 a.m. at the Princeton Medical Center. A 1976 graduate of Miss Mason's School in Princeton, Mr. Sesztak was planning to enter Boston's Northeastern University this fall after having graduated this spring from Valley Forge Military Academy.

Admitted to the Medical Center for treatment of multiple injuries were Jeffrey Poje, 21, of Pine View Court, and Roger Landry, 18, of Sycamore Lane, both residents of Skillman. Mr. Landry underwent an operation later for an injury to his jaw and Mr. Poje sustained a concussion.

Mr. Poie was in the rear seat when the accident occurred. None of the occupants, police said, was wearing a seat belt.

This prompted responses from Planning Board attorney Gerald J. Muller and Township Planner Duggan Kimball, who outlined a six year history of the changes to the 1968 ordinance.

Before taking the final vote, Mayor Firestone cited the need to pass the changes before the Thursday night planning board meeting. "It must be in place to protect our town for the future. The time for that is to-

WW-P Needs New School

As one new housing development after another is announced for West Windsor, school officials there arc having to act quickly to keep pace with the rising enrollment.

A $10.9 million middle school on Grover's Mill Road in Plainsboro isn't set to open its doors for another year, but already a citizens committee report on school facilities has concluded that a new elementary school is needed.

Negotiations are currently under way to purchase an unspecified site in Plainsboro, according to West Windsor-Plainsboro Superintendent Richard Willever. The new building, with a proposed opening date of September, 1989, would house fifth and sixth grades. A increase of 1,300 pupils is projected for the next four years, with total enrollment expected to hit almost 4,400 students by 1990. Voters will be asked to approve the new construction in a referendum this December.

Meanwhile, school officials in Lawrence Township plan to conduct a doorto-door census of the township this fall to help them project future enrollments. Superintendent Barry Gleim said the data collected will help determine the number of teachers and classrooms over the next five years.

Lawrence's school enrollment increased by 165 pupils last fall, and another 100 are expected to enter the system this September. Ground will be broken for an addition to the Lawrenceville Elementary School within the next few weeks.

Sewer Plan May Meet Requirements of EPA

In a letter referred to by Township Mayor Gail Fire-stone at the Township Committee meeting on Monday, the Joint Sewer Operating Committee's (SOC) engineering consultants have indicated that they may have found a solution to the sewer's planned overflow problem.

The sewer repair scheme was rejected by the EPA because of two planned overflow points which were built into the system. As a solution to the problem, the N.J. Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) suggested that larger pipes be used, adding more than $1 million to the cost of the project.

New data from the engineering consultant, Clinton, Bogert

In the proposed sewer plan, $4 million dollars is budgeted to remove 30 percent of the system's I&I. Preliminary data, from a more finite study by the consulting firm, indicates that a higher percentage, closer to 40 or 50 percent, could be eliminated.

"We wanted people in the Princeton and corporate community to know the Tap Room won't be a dark, dark room any more," says Cyndee Baumann, Nassau Inn's director of marketing. "The idea is to make it a fun place, a place to meet other people, other yuppie

The Tap Room, according to Nassau Inn General Manager Steven Rosenstock, had lost its identity. "People didn't know if it was a restaurant, tavern, or bar. People who came for drinks were uncomfortable because other people were din-

With an eye clearly turned O toward the highly successful J.B. Winberie across the street, be successful you have to attract a larger audience. We were eatering to a small market, and now we're broadening it. There's a different market in Princeton."

Look-a-Like. On Thursday, September 11, there will be a "Dolly Parton Look-a-Like Contest" for both men and women. Henry Gross will be the judge, with impersonators vying for "booby prizes" and the top prize of a limousine ride to New York, tiekets to "Cats," and a room for two at the Omni Park Central.

And on Wednesday, September 17, the eighth day of the event, there will be a "Sweet Dreams" adult fashion show of "daring sleepwear" worn by professional models. A Sweet Dream cocktail will cost fifty the opening nights are a live radio hroadcast; a New Year's Eve eelebration with complimentary New Year's Eve buffet; "Put a Feather in Your Cap," with the feather traded for a free dinner; a Princeton dedication; University 'Celebrate the Bubbly,' offering ten different champagne cocktails for less than a dollar; and "Get Up and Go," where persons bringing any piece of luggage may win a weekend for two in Baltimore, Washington, or Princeton.

Ms. Baumann, who insists nothing will be vulgar or hurt anybudy's feelings, said the opening festivities are geared

On the agenda for the rest of to participation. "We want people to feel comfortable as they participate. There'll be things going on; it won't be like going to a bar and having a drink.

> Remember When? Just 16 years ago there were other, very different, things going on that brought the Tap Room into the news. On February 23, 1970, Jennifer Maeleod, president of the local chapter of the National Organization for Women, led a group of women in a sit-in to protest the Tap Room's men-only policy at

The group's demands were met, but Ms. Maeleod recalls that it took months to get the Nassau Inn to change the sign reading "Men's Tap Room."

What does she think of the upcoming promotion? "It doesn't seem very Princeton," she says. "Not that I think it's immoral; it's just not very Princeton."

The newly remodeled room will still have the Norman Rockwell mural in place, but the bar in front of it has been moved upstairs to the lobby. A glass panel will be placed in front of the work to protect it.

The new bar, which seats 34, will take up the whole front of the room. The old bar seated six. The tables, which received their carved initials in the twenties and thirties when they were part of the old Nassau Inn, will remain. But they will move to the back half of the room. The booths will also stay and the lighting will be augmented.

Mr. Rosenstock said that the Nassau Inn has been in touch with Princeton University to acquire current photos of sports teams and other memorabilia to hang on the walls of the Tap Room. He said the inn doesn't want to lose its association with the University. "We are part of Princeton and the Tap Room has deep roots in the University, not only with alumni," he says. "We will always be sensitive to that."

Ms. Baumann, who has been at the Nassau Inn for two years, said the idea for the opening promotion came from a Blarney Contest held on St. Patrick's Day. "There was group participation," she recalled. "People had two or three minutes to do Blarney, and they loved it.

"A lot of people in the community and among our clients say they can't wait," she says. "Everybody is going out and buying blonde wigs for the Dolly Parton part.'

WHAT'S MY WINE?

With Jeanne Rothar

Champagne

It's called sparkling wine, but all that sparkles is not Champagne. Sparkling wines are made by adding yeast and sugar to wine which then undergoes refermentation under pressure. In the classic Champagne region of France. with its particular climate and chalky soil, this is a lengthy procedure. It involves blending white wines made from expensive grapes, individual handling of the bottles, and long aging for the secondary fermentation.

The "methode champenoise" is followed in other areas of France and the rest of the world, but the European common market countries have agreed that the name "Champagne" belongs only to that region. The United States does not come under this agreement, so New York State and California "champagnes" are sparkling wines which may or may not be produced by the ex-pensive "methode champenoise". Look for the phrase, "fermented in this bottle".

There are several popular levels of sweetness for sparkling wines: The driest is "natural", followed by "brut" (very dry) and then "extra dry" (slightly sweet). Whichever you choose, chill it well, open it carefully, and enjoy the wine!

As part of the celebration the drive-in had several enticements designed to draw patrons. These included corsages for the first 150 ladies attending each night, free popcorn for the kiddies, and door prizes ranging from a used automobile to electric washing machines and irons.

Several stores were making news on Palmer Square. Sears, Roebuck was expanding to new and larger quarters on the east side, The Clothes Line went from 33 to 53-57 on the Square, and Joan's Dress Shop had closed down for the rest of August and would re-open after Labor Day.

A suhversive group was at work in the state, Town Topics reported, seeking to undermine the civilian defense effort in New Jersey. Princeton residents were sent official-looking letters telling them they have neen appointed air raid wardens and instructing them to pick up a multitude of ridiculous equipment at police headquarters. The letters were signed by the "Director General of Air Raid Wardens," a guy who Auto Cellular Telephones:

Well, forget all that when you go to see Annie at Washington Crossing Open Air Theatre. According to the program for When she struts on stage in tat- swollen-headed stiff is the same match. After Annie wins, she is recruited for the Wild West Show by Butler, Davenport and Buffalo Bill himself (Warren Raymond) in a spirited rendition of "There's No Business Like Show Business.'

> Chemistry Convincing, But-ler (Greg Vannoy) is goodlooking - tall, slim and sexy and the chemistry between Annie and him is convincing. Davenport, who wears a wonderful red-spangled vest, is played comfortably by Vincent Zarate. Audrey Mill's Tate, a buxom lady, appropriately shrill and abrasive, could do with a little more malevolence to lend plausibility to the lyric "Why does everyone hate Dolly Tate?" Buffalo Bill, more formally known as Colonel William Cody, is a fine figurehead. In a modest little in-joke, he wears a white goatee and white frock-coated suit like Colonel Sanders of Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Generally, the costumes by Carol Stawski are interesting and effective. Annie's four siblings, transformed from backwoods ragamuffins, look darling (which is most of their reason for being on stage, since they don't have much to do with the plot); and the society scene in Act Two derives most of its effect from the delicious ballgowns of the ladies.

The sets, by director/conductor Byron Steele and Raymond Foose, are relatively innocuous when in place, but seem awkward for the stagehands. One enormous black-shrouded prop which looms against the back of the set turns out to be the railing of the pit in which Annie performs a motorcycle trick. All the audience sees of the trick is the motorcycle, which Annie wheels across the stage, and the backs of some spectators who ooh and ah while the loudspeakers project engine-roar and spotlights circle the stage. I thought it was clever, but when it was over a child's voice a couple of rows behind me piped, "Is that all?"

The motorcycle trick provides the climax of the plot. It impels Butler, who had other plans for Annie ("Sure, I'm stuck on her; but she's my project, I want to be the boss"), to leave Buffalo Bill and go over to star in a competing wild west show run by Pawnee Bill. Pawnee Bill's star, Chief Sit-

The merger of Bills, Buffalo and Pawnee, brings about a reunion between Butler and Annie, which results in a renewal of their old feud and a re-play of their shooting match. This time, having learned her lesson, Annie throws the contest and wins the man. "I'm no good, I don't know what's going to become of me,'' sighs Annie the loser, batting her eyelashes and swinging her clasped hands. "I'll take care of you," replies Butler.

Great Songs. The show is notable for its classic Irving Berlin songs — not only "There's No Business Like Show Business," but also "The Girl That I Marry," "They Say It's Wonderful," "My Defenses Are Down," "I Got the Sun in the Morning," "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better." When Annie sings, they are great songs. Butler's voice starts to wear out toward the end of the evening; but "Old-Fashioned Wedding" with Annie works, and "Anything You Can Do," also with Annie, almost works.

However, there is a problem with the songs. Mostly, it is a peculiarity of staging. Early in the show, two or three numbers (including "Doin' What Comes Natur'lly" and "You Can't Get a Man with a Gun") are staged so that the song comes to a close, the audience applauds and the singer goes offstage...then reappears for another chorus. Final Week of Films For Summer Cinema

The tenth and final week of McCarter Theatre's Summer Cinema '86 season at Kresge Auditorium will open with Stanley Kubrick's 1975 threehour period film epic Borry Lyndon.

As writer, producer and director, Kubrick spent three years trying to produce an authentic vision of 19th-century England, from customs to costumes, to battle sequences and candlelit scenes filmed without auxiliary light. The result was a film that won four Oscars including cinematographer, musical score, set design, and costumes.

The film stars Ryan O'Neal, in a title role derived from Thackeray's 19th-century novel about a rags to riches rogue who galavants through Europe. Marisa Berenson plays Lady Lyndon.

Chosen "Best Film of the Year" by the National Board of Review, Borry Lyndon remains one of the great period dramas of modern cinema and features traditional Irish music by The Chieftains.

Summer Cinema '86 will conclude with a double feature in which musical scoring plays an important role. Nicholas Roeg's 1970 Performance is an initial box office failure which has become a cult classic.

When a gangster takes refuge from his former associates in the home of a bisexual, one-time rock star (Mick Jagger) the result is long on violence, identity questions and role-playing. The film was originally rated 'X'

Koyaanisqatsi, an 87-minute visual tone poem - without commentary or narrative - on nature, man and the state of contemporary civilization in America, has also achieved cult status. Set to a mesmerizing Philip Glass score, it is not so much a documentary as an essay in sound and images.

Using time lapse, slow motion, serial and infra-red photography, director Godfrey Reggio and photographer Ron Fricke move from a Hopi painting in the desert to the Rockies, from urban skyscrapers to collapsing tenements. Full of visual and visceral thrills that take it well beyond the realm of experimental cinema, it has been called the Fantasia of the makes up the difference in business on Sundays. "I see a gradual increase in business and a shift to greater steadiness," she reports.

And over at Thomas Sweet, Owner Thomas Grim says that August Sunday business has gone up 50 percent since 1981. 'August is the slowest summer month, but it is definitely stronger than it used to be.

Some visitors leave town disappointed because not every store is open on Sunday. A couple from Lancaster County, Pa., who were both wearing Princeton shirts, said they had hoped to buy more shirts before they left. They were directed to Henry Gross and Woolworth's. but said the ones they wanted were at the Army and Navy Store on Witherspoon Street.

"And that," they said in a disappointed tone, "is closed." -Myrna K. Bearse COMPETITIVE SPORT

WATERING TREES AND SHRUBS

with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

You should inspect your trees and shrubs for signs of drought damage. Willing of the leaves is the first sign to look for, the next stage is browning or scorching of leaves from the tip down and edges in.

Lilac, Dogwood and Forsythia are the first to wilt even though they may be well established. A good watering at wilting stage will bring your plants back with little or no damage. Once the leaves are scorched they will continue to be disfigured for the remainder ot the summer.

All trees and shrubs that have been planted within the last two vears should be soaked once every 10 days if we do not have any rain. Established trees and shrubs should be watered every 2-3 weeks.

A soaker hose should be used when watering. To moisten the too 10-12 inches of soil you should water about 3-4 hrs.

The soaker hose should be turned on its side to circle the tree and direct the water in the area of maximum tree roots. For small trees turn side with holes facing trunk and for large trees face holes outward.

The day following watering open ground with a shovel to see if soil is moist to a depth of 10-12 inches.

Should you have further questions please feel free to call 110001111105, (324-3500) HB we be happy to help

FOR YOUR NEXT GREAT ADVENTURE

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

Here's an amazing college football fact ... In the last 97 YEARS Notre Dame has had only 6 losing seasons ... The only seasons when Notre Dame lost more games than they won, from 1889 through 1985, were in 1933, 1956, 1960, 1963, 1981 and 1985.

Did you know that 2 of the biggest upsets in college football history, based on predicted points, happened last year ... Oregon State, a 38-point underdog, beat Washington 21-20 on October 19, and Texas-El Paso, a 36-point underdog, beat Brigham Young 23-16 on Oct. 26.

ONE STRIKE AND YOU ARE OUT. That's not a new baseball rule. That's the way disaster plays the game. Is your house, car, life and income insured for a disaster?

Here's an unusual oddity that happened once in big league baseball .. The SAME pitcher led the National League in wins AND in losses the SAME year! ... In 1979, pitcher Phil Niekro won 21 games, which were the most by any pitcher in the league - but he also lost 20 games that year to lead the league in most losses ... That was the first time that ever happened in major league baseball.

score in the botton of the fourth inning and with two out in the last of the seventh inning, pushed across the winning run to make the final score 3-2.

The loss sent Ficarro's/tPC into the loser's bracket final against Hamilton Township's Grove Plumbing. Grove drew first blood in the top of the first inning but defense prevailed, and there was no score again until the bottom of the fourth when Bill Ault hit a towering triple to the left field wall and was driven in on a Dee Discavage sacrifice fly. The next several innings developed into a pitchers' duel between Ficarro's/IPC's Mike Fitzpatrick and Grove's Cathy Elberson, as the game went in-to extra innings, before Grove broke it open in the top of the ninth with six runs on six hits, to 7-1. Grove moved on to meet Pfisto's for the title and was defeated, 13-3.

Ficarro's/IPC's leading hitters in the tournament were Joe Discavage (.625), Mike Fitzpatrick (.429), Grace Durland and Bill Ault (both .417), and Debbie Smyth (.385). With its third place finish, Ficarro's/IPC has earned a berth in the USSSA National Coed tournament to be held September 27-28 at Mercer County Park.

The victors' final run came an inning later, when Pat Kahny's sacrifice fly plated Jason Petrone.

Hinkson's, the regularseason champions, could muster only six hits off Andy hurler Jeff Grover. From the second inning through the sixth, the veteran pitcher retired 12 out of 13 Hinkson batters, including three perfect innings.

"We managed to salvage something out of the season, observed Andy's playermanager Jeff Petrone, one of five Petrone brothers on the team. Last year, Andy's Tavern lost the championship playoff series in two games to rival Conte-Staats.

The nucleus of the Andy's Tavern team, Petrone noted, has won the playoff championship three out of the past four years and has also claimed the regular-season crown three times in the last four seasons.

'So history speaks for itself," said Petrone. "Whenever there is a big game, Andy's has and will - win the big one."
